ITALIAN, RUSSIAN AND ANGLO-FRENCH IN TRIPPLE RUSH

Sturm Tonten Fronts With Best Success—England Will Trade Prisoners With Germany

All over Forty-five Years of Age to Go Home—Exchange is to be Made Regardless of Numbers.

By Ed. L. Kane
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, August 10.—The Italian, Russian and Anglo-French armies engaged in a mighty triple offensive on three fronts swept onward with fresh successes against the Tontons in fighting late yesterday and today, according to latest advice from the allied capital.

After taking Gowitz the Italians continued in pursuit of the fleeing Austrians, capturing the aviation station at Alcovizza, six miles east of Gowitz, and many prisoners. Russian troops under General Letchitsky have taken the railway station at Chryplin only three miles east of Bessitza on the Bessitza river. The retreating Austrians and Germans burnt all railroad bridges and are preparing to take a final stand on the left bank of the Bessitza. British forces have made further advance in the region of Pozieres. The Australians have penetrated the German trenches for 200 yards on a six mile front. The French have advanced near Hem. Hague dispatches say that the Germans are very anxious over the situation, and it is said they fear that the allies will next begin a great offensive around Salonic.

Strong Austrian positions at Boscchini, south of Gowitz, has been occupied by Italian forces, it was officially announced this afternoon.

London, Aug. 10.—Great Britain has reached an agreement with Germany for the exchange of prisoners over 45 years of age regardless of numbers. Lord Robert Cecil announced in Commons this afternoon. Arrangements are being completed for the exchange of equal numbers of prisoners of military age, he said. Dispatches to the United Press about three weeks ago, reported that such an arrangement was being discussed.

JUDGE ALLOWS MUNITIONS TO BE CARRIED THROUGH CITY

Trenton, August 10.—(By United Press)—Sitting at Belmar, Federal Judge Rellalab granted an injunction restraining the board of commissioners of Jersey City from preventing the shipment through that place of explosives of the Canadian Car & Foundry company. The embargo was declared after the recent Black Tom disaster, but under the federal ruling the placing of the ban was illegal and the transportation of war material can be carried on as freely as before.

Auto Party Visiting Clearfield Have a Very Narrow Escape

Broken Steerig Gear Sends Fast Running Car Into Fence Where it Turns Over.

Dr. D. E. Pottorf, wife and daughter, who visited Dave Woolridge here for a few days had a very narrow escape while returning to their home in Ashtabula, O. Mrs. Pottorf is a sister-in-law of Mr. Woolridge. The car was running about twenty-five miles per hour when the accident occurred and that all escaped without serious injury is miraculous. The

That the county commissioners neglected to take the oath of the Board of Tax Revision or that they did not take it until 30 days after the time provided by act of Assembly, and that all their acts while sitting as a Board of Tax Revision in the case of Gulich Township is the allegation of District Attorney Welch in an application for Mandamus brought yesterday. District Attorney Welch also alleges that the notices sent out by the board of commissioners were combined notices, and that they were a board of revision and board of appeals at the same time which is contrary to law.

It is the duty of the board of revision to equalize taxes in the districts and after they have done this, according to the oath they are required to take, then they will sit as a board of appeals to whom any citizen of the county may apply for a correction of any mistakes.

The commonwealth also alleges that the board of commissioners failed to publish a statement showing the aggregate value of lands and assessments which is specifically required by act of Legislature.

Cole & Hartwick, attorneys for the present board of commissioners have accepted service of the process and will defend the county commissioners. The act grows out of some trouble over the triennial assessment made by Roy M. Fox, assessor of Gulich township.

After summing up the various allegations made District Attorney Welch asks the court to command the county commissioners "to qualify by oath as a board of revision and to publish as required by law the aggregate value and assessments made by each assessor in each district of the county."

FLOUR HAS ADVANCED IN THE CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, August 10.—(By United Press)—Flour was advanced 50c per barrel in Chicago wholesale markets. A housewife who buys a "big sack" will now pay 10c or 15c more for it than she did yesterday. Flour today sold at $7.25 a barrel for the baker's grade. Yesterday it sold for $6.75. In the last month flour has advanced $2.00 a barrel and the bakers are already considering the abandonment of the 5c loaf of bread, and making only the 10c loaf, smaller than the previous dime loaf. Brokers in close touch with the situation discounted the rumors that $2.00 wheat was in sight.

There will be a meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the Fourth Ward Hose House to discuss the question "Should the Borough Buy the Water Company?" All interested citizens are urged to be present.

CURWENSVILLE MAY HAVE BOATING AND BATHING

Party of Citizens Promoting The Idea Which is Getting Considerable Support

The Plan is to Devote the Cost of Chautauqua to the Local Enterprise so as to Obtain Permanent And Healthful Benefits.

There is a movement being agitated in Curwensville at present to promote something that will be of vast importance and benefit to every man, woman and child in the municipality. The idea is being advanced that instead of having a Chautauqua or any other entertainment of that nature here next season, to take the same amount of money and apply it to building two dams in the river, one on the site of the old dam and another one near the Pee-Wee's nest to be used for boating and bathing purposes; also to erect and maintain two small bath houses along the upper dam, and clear and put into some condition, sanitary and otherwise, a plot of ground to be used for a children's play ground and for holding picnic parties. The enterprise is a most laudable one, and already many have expressed a willingness to contribute liberal financial support. It is estimated that $1000 would be ample to have all necessary work done. If the project goes through, and it is not unlikely that it will not, it cannot help but benefit every citizen of the town.

New York, August 10.—(By United Press)—"We are standing firm" was the word brought from the conference today of the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation and the heads of 400,000 trainmen of the country. It was made clear that the trainmen had not given an inch in their demands. It was evident that they are more ready to agree to a strike than they are to yielding to any suggestions for arbitration. A. C. Garretson, one of the heads of the Brotherhoods, stated that they would insist upon the granting of her demands in full.

PENNSY ROAD MAKES GREAT SAFE RECORD

No Fatalities On Eastern Lines For a Period of Over Three And One-Half Years

EMPLOYEES ARE GIVEN CREDIT

One of the chief factors that has enabled the Pennsylvania Railroad to maintain a long record for the safe transportation of passengers is revealed in the report of efficiency tests on the lines east of Pittsburgh, which has just been compiled for the first six months of 1916.

From January 1st to June 30th of this year, a total of 2,496,504 tests and observations were made on the Pennsylvania Railroad's eastern lines to determine how well signals were being obeyed and the train operating rules followed.

The results showed perfect performance in more than 99.9 per cent of the cases. To be exact, in only one instance in each 1,225 trials was there any failure to followed explicitly the signal indications or to obey the regulations governing train operation. These efficiency tests are conducted under the strictest rules. For instance, if an engineman runs his locomotive one foot past a "stop" signal his action counts as a failure.

In the period during which these tests were made, 76,790,000 passengers were carried on the lines east of Pittsburgh, and not a single one was killed in a train accident.

The Pennsylvania's Railroad's eastern lines now have a continuous record of 3 1/2 years during which better than 99.9 per cent of perfection has been shown by 16,658,649 tests of the efficiency, fidelity and discipline of the men who operate the trains. In the period 396,000,000 passengers have been carried on the lines east of Pittsburgh, Erie and Buffalo, and not one has lost his life in a train accident.

"SOLD FOR MARRIAGE."

At the Opera House tomorrow evening the Triangle Film Corporation will present Lillian Gish in a drama of heart interest entitled "Sold for Marriage." Marfa, the heroine of the story is a beautiful young Russian girl adored by all the young men of the village. She loves Jan, a student who leaves for America to seek his fortune after promising to send for her as soon as he makes money enough. Marfa lives with her uncle who plans to have her wed a repulsive old man of considerable wealth, but Marfa hits him over the head with a club and cures his infatuation. Tehn, the uncle, plans to take her to America and sell her to some wealthy member of the Russian colony in New York. She meets Jan on the ship and saves him from being murdered for his money. Arriving in America they are met by the uncle's brother who has all arrangements made for the sale of Marfa. Jan hears of this and goes to the New York police force who rescue her from the fate planned for her. The course Jan takes then is one of the most interesting turns of this thrilling story.

CURWENSVILLE BORO AND BIGLER TWP. WANT REFUND

Claim County Treasurer No Right to Take 5 Per Cent of Liquor License Fees

Bring Suit Against Three Former Treasurers in Test Case to Find out Whether They can Recover.

R. D. Swoope, solicitor for the borough of Curwensville and Bigler township has caused an action to be brought by the commonwealth against William Boyce, W. C. Goss and L. W. Dyer, former county treasurers of Clearfield county to recover license fees collected by them during their respective terms of office.

An Act of Assembly of 1887 provided a commission of 5 per cent, for the county treasurer on all liquor license fees returned to boroughs and townships. Under this act, county treasurers all over the state have been collecting 5 per cent. commissions on all liquor license money and have continued to do so up until the past year. It appears, however, that the passage of the Brooks License Law of 1891 repealed the act of 1887, but made no provision for a commission to be paid the county treasurer. Whether the different county treasurers serving since 1891 were allowed this 5 per cent. commission on account of the law making no provision for the remuneration or whether they continued to take it in ignorance of the law having been repealed is not known.

The action taken against the former county treasurers is in the nature of a test case and except in case of large districts the amount involved is quite small. A great many complicated legal questions will have to be settled. A treasurer's bond is good for 21 years and it may be that the districts bringing action will be able to recover the commissions taken for that period. It is claimed that the defendants in the action will claim their rights under the statute of limitations.

The present county treasurer has not taken the 5 per cent. commission this year as was taken in former years, but has returned all money to the districts. He will await the decision of the court before accepting any commission on liquor license fees.

European War Anniversary Articles

In cannon and the favorable typography of the battleground had been responsible.

Rome, like the rest of Italy, was full of wild and generally exaggerated rumors. The gossip, usually calculated to dishearten a people, was current.

Stories of enemy advances and alleged traitors in Italy's camp, of alleged captures or annihilation of important generals and regiments were on many tongues. Nothing, however, could dispirit the courageous people.

"Temporary reverses" only hardened their determination to win and whipped their pride to greater efforts. Therefore they celebrated the anniversary by flinging into the face of the enemy not a decreasing, but an increasing enthusiasm for war.

Much credit is due the country's women of the people. They responded nobly to the general call for self-sacrifice. Girls replaced the male conductors on the street car and the male sweepers of the streets.

In a great measure the fields began to be tilled and the crops gathered by women. Other feminine substitutes, permitting able-bodied men to train for war, were employed.

Even society gave up its money and its pleasures.

Red Cross hospitals and war relief stations were established and volunteer workers gathered by the thousands.

Italian womanhood, which for years had been crying for industrial recognition, at last was recognized. Ardent suffragists rejoiced and stored away arguments for future use.

The "civil organizations" included an entire system of organized activities. Girls who formerly frittered away their time on teas and parties, were impelled to patriotic pursuits. Others who had been too closely sheltered by old-fashioned paternal care, followed their example.

The poorer classes rivaled both in their devotion to duty.

Italian maidenhood abandoned its lazy, dreamlike existence for a life of feverish activity.

Quickly but carefully trained nurses tended the wounded warriors at the town and city hospitals. Some of these were private villas donated for the Red Cross or the government by private philanthropies or individuals. Others were seminaries for priests, loaned by the Pope.

Educational and food centers for the relief of families of soldiers were opened. All kinds of assistance was given to the needy families of the men at the front. Special care of the children of the fighters and women about to become mothers was exercised. Employment was found for those who needed it. The home manufacture of military clothing was encouraged and aided.

Princess Doria offered a large part of her palace for use as a laboratory. Princess Alys Borghese established an economical kitchen in her private property and took charge of it. So many as 162,666 meals have been served there in a single month.

Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, wife of the American Ambassador to Italy, co-operated in these wartime works of mercy. Other residents of the American colony in the Italian kingdom lent willing hands.

Many have sought the ambulance in the very field of battle. Some temporarily became Sisters of Mercy to facilitate the step.

Others signed official documents, which have often become their death warrants. They were compelled to swear that they would be willing to die for the sake of duty and possibly be buried in "a soldier's unmarked grave." In no wise would the government be responsible for their patriotic martyrdom. In countless cases heroic nurses have given of their flesh and blood to save the wounded, unflinchingly they have invited and undergone serious grafting operations.

Queen Helena has been the ruling spirit of all these activities. She generally has inspired and directed everything. She has had the ready assistance of the Queen Mother Marguerita. Both have labored unceasingly from the war's start for "Our Italy's Cause." Even now they continue to make their rounds to the Roman hospitals in the vicinity almost daily. Everywhere they leave the sunshine of cheer and encouragement in their wake.

The King at the front and the royal family at home probably, more than anything else, have preserved the splendid morals of the Italian people.

Why

falter on the HILLS

Hill-hesitation is galling to your average driver. His sporting blood boils when a 1910-Complex flivver past on the first long pull with apparent ease and matter-of-factness. Invariably he bawls-out his motor and labels it "a cheese." But—ten-to-one, the motor itself is guiltless. The real cause is faulty lubrication.

If your car does the hesitation on the grades, look first to the kind of oil you are using. The Atlantic Refining Company, the oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the world, have produced a group of four motor oils that answer every lubrication question, under any and all driving conditions.

Polarine, the leader of the group, is the correct lubricant for eight out of ten cars. The alternatives are Atlantic "Light," Atlantic "Medium" and Atlantic "Heavy."

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It is free. Ask your garage for it. If they cannot supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

At least one of these four is the exact oil for your particular motor. Your garageman will advise you which to use to get 100-percent results.

Atlantic Motor Oils bear the same relation to lubrication that Atlantic Gasoline—the accepted standard—bears to fuel.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign you Have Been Eating too Much Meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and laggard. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sour, tonchannels often get sore, water scalds is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channells often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act free. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

CURWENSVILLE

The Pyramid coal mine, located within sight of the town, is being operated to its almost fullest capacity at present. From five to six large coppers are being loaded and shipped daily, the train averaging about 250
tons. Three Curwensville men are largely interested financially in this mine, namely: Mr. Fred Pilkington,
Mr. M. J. Kelly and Mrs. I. B. Norris.
Mr. E. O. Ellery of Philadelphia, is also one of the stockholders. The vein is being worked from under the Isaac Caldwell farm, and for some years back it was considered that all of the coal underlying that section
had been taken out, but the output
from the present mine has proven to the contrary, and the mine is good
for a half a dozen years yet.

Smith and Charles Vesolowski, three

August Clean-Up Sale

The First Day Started With A Rush and Continued With Brisk Buying Throughout The Day

With the opening of our doors on the great August Clean-Up Sale hundreds crowded into the store to participate in this grand and sensational sacrifice of summer stocks.

More goods and bigger bargains than ever before are the features of this stirring clean-up that are bringing record crowds.

This opportunity is such an unusual one that we will not venture to predict how long it will endure. If the first day's business is to be accepted as a criterion, we venture to predict the clearance we wish to accomplish will take place in record time.

FASHION DECREES FALL HATS WILL BE PURPLE VELVET

Chicago, August 10.—(By United Press)—Her hat will be purple velvet. Fashion dictators at today's session of the Chicago Garment manufacturers' Fall style show at Bismarck said so today.

If it isn't purple velvet it will be brown velvet, or black velvet. There will be a great deal of velvet in women's hats this fall, especially for the milliners.

Women's fall wearing apparel continued the center of attraction today

for Chicago visitors attending the show.

Not the least of this show was the display of hats. The purple ones
seemed to attract the most attention,
probably because the wholesalers had whispered that "Women will like the purple ones," and "They're all the rage," and a few other well directed remarks that make "this year's styles" always the prettiest.

After the purple velvets, buyers
planned to take home with them for their trade brown velvets, black vel-

and a lot of chic, wide brimmed, white hats with a bright colored crown and
a narrow ribbon to match on the brim.
The sport hat this fall is a floppy felt affair with not much of anything on it but a band.

"They'll take, though," wholesalers
said.

ITALIAN, RUSSIAN AND ANGLO-FRENCH IN TRIPPLE RUSH

Sturm Tonten Fronts With Best Success—England Will Trade Prisoners With Germany

All over Forty-five Years of Age to Go Home—Exchange to be Made Regardless of Numbers.

By Ed. L. Kane
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, August 10.—The Italian, Russian and Anglo-French armies engaged in a mighty triple offensive on three fronts swept onward with fresh successes against the Tontons in fighting late yesterday and today, according to latest advice from the allied capital.

After taking Gowitz the Italians continued in pursuit of the fleeing Austrians, capturing the aviation station at Alcovizza, six miles east of Gowitz, and many prisoners. Russian troops under General Letchitsky have taken the railway station at Chryplin only three miles east of Bessarabia on the Bestritz river. The retreating Austrians and Germans burnt all railroad bridges and are preparing to take a final stand on the left bank of the Bestritz. British forces have made further advance in the region of Pozieres. The Australians have penetrated the German trenches for 200 yards on a six mile front. The French have advanced near Hem. Hague dispatches say that the Germans are very anxious over the situation, and it is said they fear that the allies will next begin a great offensive around Salonic.

Strong Austrian positions at Boscchini, south of Gowitz, has been occupied by Italian forces, it was officially announced this afternoon.

London, Aug. 10.—Great Britain has reached an agreement with Germany for the exchange of prisoners over 45 years of age regardless of numbers. Lord Robert Cecil announced in Commons this afternoon. Arrangements are being completed for the exchange of equal numbers of prisoners of military age, he said. Dispatches to the United Press about three weeks ago, reported that such an arrangement was being discussed.

JUDGE ALLOWS MUNITIONS TO BE CARRIED THROUGH CITY

Trenton, August 10.—(By United Press)—Sitting at Belmar, Federal Judge Rellab granted an injunction restraining the board of commissioners of Jersey City from preventing the shipment through that place of explosives of the Canadian Car & Foundry company. The embargo was declared after the recent Black Tom disaster, but under the federal ruling the placing of the ban was illegal and the transportation of war material can be carried on as freely as before.

Auto Party Visiting Clearfield Have a Very Narrow Escape

Broken Steerig Gear Sends Fast Running Car Into Fence Where it Turns Over.

Dr. D. E. Pottorf, wife and daughter, who visited Dave Woolridge here for a few days had a very narrow escape while returning to their home in Ashtabula, O. Mrs. Pottorf is a sister-in-law of Mr. Woolridge. The car was running about twenty-five miles per hour when the accident occurred and that all escaped without serious injury is miraculous. The

That the county commissioners neglected to take the oath of the Board of Tax Revision or that they did not take it until 30 days after the time provided by act of Assembly, and that all their acts while sitting as a Board of Tax Revision in the case of Gulich Township is the allegation of District Attorney Welch in an application for Mandamus brought yesterday. District Attorney Welch also alleges that the notices sent out by the board of commissioners were combined notices, and that they were a board of revision and board of appeals at the same time which is contrary to law.

It is the duty of the board of revision to equalize taxes in the districts and after they have done this, according to the oath they are required to take, then they will sit as a board of appeals to whom any citizen of the county may apply for a correction of any mistakes.

The commonwealth also alleges that the board of commissioners failed to publish a statement showing the aggregate value of lands and assessments which is specifically required by act of Legislature.

Cole & Hartwick, attorneys for the present board of commissioners have accepted service of the process and will defend the county commissioners. The act grows out of some trouble over the triennial assessment made by Roy M. Fox, assessor of Gulich township.

After summing up the various allegations made District Attorney Welch asks the court to command the county commissioners "to qualify by oath as a board of revision and to publish as required by law the aggregate value and assessments made by each assessor in each district of the county."

FLOUR HAS ADVANCED IN THE CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, August 10.—(By United Press)—Flour was advanced 50c per barrel in Chicago wholesale markets. A housewife who buys a "big sack" will now pay 10c or 15c more for it than she did yesterday. Flour today sold at $7.25 a barrel for the baker's grade. Yesterday it sold for $6.75. In the last month flour has advanced $2.00 a barrel and the bakers are already considering the abandonment of the 5c loaf of bread, and making only the 10c loaf, smaller than the previous dime loaf. Brokers in close touch with the situation discounted the rumors that $2.00 wheat was in sight.

ONE YEAR AGO IN THE WAR.

August 10, 1915.—Russians prepared to evacuate Kovno and Dvinsk; Germans continued rapid advances on the Bug River, ending with the capture of Siedice, sixty miles east of Warsaw; Turkish army of 90,000 defeated and driven back into Armenia by the Russians; Allies invaded Turkey, landing at Karachal, Thrace, north of the Gulf of Saros.

There will be a meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the Fourth Ward Hose House to discuss the question "Should the Borough Buy the Water Company?" All interested citizens are urged to be present.

GRASS FLAT DEFEATED BY LOCAL TEAM

Some Great Plays By Members of Clearfield Team Who Work Like Old Veterans

GRASSFLAT'S ONLY DEFEAT

Clearfield defeated Grass Flat on their home grounds yesterday by a score of five to two. This is the only game Grass Flat has lost this season. Bowes done fine work in the box for the locals allowing nine scattered hits. Heberling's steal home in the second inning and his great running one hand catch in the first inning were the features of the game. Fauver, McCloskey each contributed a nice two base hit. "Old Red" was there on the receiving end with first class form and got every thing that came his way. A triple play between McGowan, Lester and Robinson was one of the first class featre. CURWENSVILLE MAY HAVE BOATING AND BATHING

Party of Citizens Promoting The Idea Which is Getting Considerable Support

The Plan is to Devote the Cost of Chautauqua to the Local Enterprise so as to Obtain Permanent And Healthful Benefits.

There is a movement being agitated in Curwensville at present to promote something that will be of vast importance and benefit to every man, woman and child in the municipality. The idea is being advanced that instead of having a Chautauqua or any other entertainment of that nature here next season, to take the same amount of money and apply it to building two dams in the river, one on the site of the old dam and another one near the Pee-Wee's nest to be used for boating and bathing purposes; also to erect and maintain two small bath houses along the upper dam, and clear and put into some condition, sanitary and otherwise, a plot of ground to be used for a children's play ground and for holding picnic parties. The enterprise is a most laudable one, and already many have expressed a willingness to contribute liberal financial support. It is estimated that $1000 would be ample to have all necessary work done. If the project goes through, and it is not unlikely that it will not, it cannot help but benefit every citizen of the town.

New York, August 10.—(By United Press)—"We are standing firm" was the word brought from the conference today of the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation and the heads of 400,000 trainmen of the country. It was made clear that the trainmen had not given an inch in their demands. It was evident that they are more ready to agree to a strike than they are to yielding to any suggestions for arbitration. A. C. Garretson, one of the heads of the Brotherhoods, stated that they would insist upon the granting of her demands in full.

PENNSY ROAD MAKES GREAT SAFE RECORD

No Fatalities On Eastern Lines For a Period of Over Three And One-Half Years

EMPLOYEES ARE GIVEN CREDIT

One of the chief factors that has enabled the Pennsylvania Railroad to maintain a long record for the safe transportation of passengers is revealed in the report of efficiency tests on the lines east of Pittsburgh, which has just been compiled for the first six months of 1916.

From January 1st to June 30th of this year, a total of 2,496,504 tests and observations were made on the Pennsylvania Railroad's eastern lines to determine how well signals were being obeyed and the train operating rules followed.

The results showed perfect performance in more than 99.9 per cent of the cases. To be exact, in only one instance in each 1,225 trials was there any failure to followed explicitly the signal indications or to obey the regulations governing train operation. These efficiency tests are conducted under the strictest rules. For instance, if an engineman runs his locomotive one foot past a "stop" signal his action counts as a failure.

In the period during which these tests were made, 76,790,000 passengers were carried on the lines east of Pittsburgh, and not a single one was killed in a train accident.

The Pennsylvania's Railroad's eastern lines now have a continuous record of 3 1/2 years during which better than 99.9 per cent of perfection has been shown by 16,658,649 tests of the efficiency, fidelity and discipline of the men who operate the trains. In the period 396,000,000 passengers have been carried on the lines east of Pittsburgh, Erie and Buffalo, and not one has lost his life in a train accident.

"SOLD FOR MARRIAGE."

At the Opera House tomorrow evening the Triangle Film Corporation will present Lillian Gish in a drama of heart interest entitled "Sold for Marriage." Marfa, the heroine of the story is a beautiful young Russian girl adored by all the young men of the village. She loves Jan, a student who leaves for America to seek his fortune after promising to send for her as soon as he makes money enough. Marfa lives with her uncle who plans to have her wed a repulsive old man of considerable wealth, but Marfa hits him over the head with a club and cures his infatuation. Tehn, the uncle, plans to take her to America and sell her to some wealthy member of the Russian colony in New York. She meets Jan on the ship and saves him from being murdered for his money. Arriving in America they are met by the uncle's brother who has all arrangements made for the sale of Marfa. Jan hears of this and goes to the New York police force who rescue her from the fate planned for her. The course Jan takes then is one of the most interesting turns of this thrilling story.

A Sixty Year Old Man Leaps From Top of Singer Building

Is The First Man to Leap From Top of Either of The Two Highest Buildings of New York

New York, Aug. 10.—(By United Press)—By a spectacular plunge from the Singer Building, the second tallest office building in the world, Alfred Goldman, 60, of Brooklyn, committed suicide this afternoon. Thousands of office employes on lower Broadway saw Goldman's body hurtling by, and rushed to the middle of the street, where the body fell crushed into a shapeless mass of flesh and bone. In Goldman's pocket was found a letter in reply to an application to secure him a place in the New York Home for Incurables. Goldman is the first man who has leaped from either of the two tallest buildings in New York City, the Singer Building and the Woolworth Building.

CURWENSVILLE BORO AND BIGLER TWP. WANT REFUND

Claim County Treasurer No Right to Take 5 Per Cent of Liquor License Fees

Bring Suit Against Three Former Treasurers in Test Case to Find out Whether They can Recover.

R. D. Swoope, solicitor for the borough of Curwensville and Bigler township has caused an action to be brought by the commonwealth against William Boyce, W. C. Goss and L. W. Dyer, former county treasurers of Clearfield county to recover license fees collected by them during their respective terms of office.

An Act of Assembly of 1887 provided a commission of 5 per cent, for the county treasurer on all liquor license fees returned to boroughs and townships. Under this act, county treasurers all over the state have been collecting 5 per cent. commissions on all liquor license money and have continued to do so up until the past year. It appears, however, that the passage of the Brooks License Law of 1891 repealed the act of 1887, but made no provision for a commission to be paid the county treasurer. Whether the different county treasurers serving since 1891 were allowed this 5 per cent. commission on account of the law making no provision for the remuneration or whether they continued to take it in ignorance of the law having been repealed is not known.

The action taken against the former county treasurers is in the nature of a test case and except in case of large districts the amount involved is quite small. A great many complicated legal questions will have to be settled. A treasurer's bond is good for 21 years and it may be that the districts bringing action will be able to recover the commissions taken for that period. It is claimed that the defendants in the action will claim their rights under the statute of limitations.

The present county treasurer has not taken the 5 per cent. commission this year as was taken in former years, but has returned all money to the districts. He will await the decision of the court before accepting any commission on liquor license fees.

BOYS AND BEDS.

There is a boy on a "fresh air" farm near Chicago who is afraid to go to bed. When asked about it, he was willing to admit that he was tired but that he did not want to go to sleep. Why, then, he so intensely hated to get into bed, the natural refuge of the fatigued, and drowsy, was a mystery to the authorities. His only objection was, "But it's too soft."

Finally, according to the Chicago Tribune, another of the boys explained in this wise:

"That kid ain't never sleep on a bed before, and he's afraid of it. And he's scared to go to sleep on the floor too, because no one else does it. He says he'll stick his nose in the pillow and die if he sleeps in the bed. But he won't, will he mister?"

Pool, youngster! Afraid of the bed because the habit of his young life-experience of sleeping on the floor. Afraid of the floor, because of the present, surrounding, public opinion. What was he to do?

Doubtless, by this time, his problem has been solved by the kindly folk in charge.

But, as you relax comfortably tonight, on clean sheets and comfortable mattress, fortified by springs, suppose you meditate for a moment or two whether there isn't some little thing you can do to make life sweeter for some of the kiddies who have never slept on a bed.

HOW THE SWISS PLAN WORKED.

I was in Switzerland when the war broke out. On August 1, 1914, in the city of Geneva, there was not visible a single soldier going about the streets. Any one would have said, here is a nation that knows absolutely nothing of war. On August 4, four days after that 400,000 Swiss soldiers were on the frontier. I saw their mobilization. It was an invisible army on August 1. On August 4 visible and under arms.

It is impossible that a nation should be able to summon 400,000 soldiers and have them in arms without that nation being led into war; that statement has been made. Has it worked out that way in Switzerland?

It is now nearly two years that these soldiers have been on the border, looking over into the trenches of the enemy in many places. We do not know under what pressure they have been to draw into this war. The fact remains that they have not been drawn into it. They have had one idea, that of defending their country. Look at the contrast between Switzerland and Belgium. It would have been a greater advantage for the German armies to go through Switzerland than through Belgium. But the Swiss defended their land, and the belligerents respected them.

Switzerland gives us the type of army that we should have in the United States. The invisible army, not seen on our streets, not forcing themselves with scorn upon us on all sides, an army under the control of the government, not a government under the control of the army.—President John G. Hibben, of Chautauqua.

THE FRIENDS OF CHILD LABOR.

Is it any wonder that hundreds and thousands of Pennsylvanians hang their heads in shame when the character of Pennsylvania's representation in the Senate of the United States is brought to their attention? On Tuesday the two senators from this state had the enviable distinction of being the only Republicans who voted with the Southern Democrats against the child labor bill, a measure that is demanded by every humane consideration and is a direct response to a nation-wide impulse to throw the mantle of the law's protection over the little ones who would otherwise be caught inextricably in the coils of the industrial machine. The mere fact that this Federal enactment is counter to the inadequate provisions of the Pennsylvania laws and that it will compel the observance in the anthracite coal breakers of those regulations as to hours of labor and the ages of employees that have been fixed as standards in nearly all the great industries of the nation cannot be accepted as an excuse for the attitude taken by Senators Penrose and Oliver. By their votes on this question these men have shown themselves to be thoroughly out of harmony with the humane spirit that has quickened recent social legislation, and even out of accord with the practice and professions of their fellow Republicans. The Republican party will not be held responsible for the Bourbonism of these two politicians, but the people of this state should emphatically repudiate them as misrepresenting their constituents on one of the vital questions of the hour.—Public Ledger.

POPULAR SPIRIT IN ENGLAND.

By Ed. L. Keen.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

London, July 15.—(By Mail)—Some Britons are born patriots, others achieve patriotism, and still others—Yes, the paraphrase holds good all the way through. Only, the one who had patriotism thrust upon them constitute a very small minority of the British public.

Conscription is no criterion. There were less than a million draftees let to be conscripted. The majority of these would have volunteered if the reasons why their services were required had been more frankly, freely stated. Lots of Britons have relatives in Missouri; some more skeptical than others. The military powers thought they couldn't take the British public into their confidence without enlightening the Germans. "You King and country need you," they said. That sufficed for five million men; the others wanted details.

But this installment of war annals observations has to do principally with those who have achieved patriotism, and it revolves largely about a man named Ben Tillett—because he is a type.

Before the war Ben was a self-proclaimed revolutionary socialist. For the period of the war he is neither international, revolutionary, nor socialist. He is all Britain. What he will be after the war, Ben says is his own business. If he weren't over military age, Ben would be in the army. He is doing his bit by preaching patriotism to those who haven't acquired it in full measure.

Ben used to vie with Mrs. Pankhurst for the doubtful distinction of being Trouble-Maker-in-Chief of the British Empire. As head of the Dockers' Union and organizer of the powerful Transport Workers' Federation, he has successfully engineered some most disturbing strikes.

It was the Tillets and Pankhursts of England and the Casements of Ireland, that Germany looked for substantial aid. But mostly her calculations went wrong. Social and industrial unrest in England didn't mean pro-Germanism or anti-Britishism when the empire became involved in outside difficulties.

There were serious labor disputes in the early days—two of them, big, involving the Welsh coal-miners and the Clyde ship workers. But in these there were other causes than lack of patriotism. The strikers felt that they had been unduly exploited. Their sole demand was that they be accorded a reasonable share of the war profits from their labor. In both the big strikes, the men won.

This year's disturbance on the Clyde was different. It was obviously organized by men of pro-German sympathies and most Britishers believe, financed by the Germans. The labor leaders had no part in it; they protested against it. The government acquiesced the agitators and killed the strike.

As to the attitude of the British labor generally toward the war? No fewer than 4,500,000 of the five million volunteer soldiers were drawn from the working classes. But this is only a part of the story.

The Tillets of England, men who previously had put the rights of organized labor above everything else, have surrendered their most cherished principles. In the interest of the Empire the trade unions have forfeited for the period of the war practically all they had succeeded in establishing through desperate and bitter struggle. Their greatest sacrifice was the "dilution of labor" or placing unskilled workers on a par with the skilled—both men and women. The bars of unionism have been let down in the name of patriotism. The Union's agreement with the government provides:

"Co-operative efforts to increase production by the abolition of all conditions which tend to increase and maintain output; interchangeability inside the trade of various classes who are members of the trade union; pension for the period of the war all incomes of debarment and introduced from allied and other trades of skilled men, unskilled men and women."

This is organized labor's reply to the charge of lack of patriotism. The unions are still passing it out, against the principle and ambition of conscription—against the one who is responsible to the state as a citizen and against the other who is a member of the trade union.

So much for Ben Tillett and his friends. How about the rest? Most of the Irish opposition to the war was of American origin. The Irish no finer patriots in England than Ben Tillett and his friends. The Irish, that representing the two poles of Irish opinion. The Sinn Féin had been organized by a man, meaning but self-explanatory, who was self-explanatory in an American. Financed by German, farmers, millowners, village, now was not an expression of the Irish sentiment. No troops in the whole Empire have fought more gallantly or suffered greater losses than the Irish regiments. The Ulsterists have proven their patriotism by coming to the inauguration of Home Rule forthwith. The Nationalists have demonstrated theirs by agreeing to the exclusion of Ulster from its provisions. Patriotism alone is solving the Irish question. Altogether Great Britain is showing a more firmly united front today than when the war started or than a year ago. Capital and Labor have been drawn closer together. The over-seas dominions have exhibited magnificent loyalty. Even India, upon which Germany confidently counted for sedition activities, if not open rebellion, has remained steadfast.

But to Britons the most encouraging sign is the attitude of the business community. As Lord Revelstoke, England's greatest merchant-banker, recently told the United Press:

"So long as our military authorities require money to carry on the war we shall not shrink from no sacrifice in order to provide it."

POPULAR SPIRIT IN RUSSIA.
By William Philip Simms.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Petrograd, July 15.—(By Mail)—Twenty-four months of war has made a new country of Russia. The spirit of the people has changed. Confirmed pessimists admit that the war has worked a miracle.

Two years ago when fighting began, Russia, like England and France, was torn by internal dissension. Her many races were at odds. A strife of serious proportions was on. Looking dark for the Empire.

Russia today is more united than she ever has been. She is better organized. Every city and town in the land belongs to a Municipal Union to aid the nation. Every village and rural district has joined a second and similar organization. In all Russia, including Siberia, there is scarcely a single peasant not working for the army or some public good.

Up to August, 1914, of nearly two hundred million Russian subjects, few had taken direct part in any public or national work. They are today nearly all doing their bit. This fact is lending a brand new tone to the Empire.

A war of gigantic proportions makes or breaks a participant. For Russia this one promises to be a blessing in disguise, according to notoriously conservative thinkers here who believe they see in the wartime spirit of the public the commencement of unprecedented developments.

The Russian Duma is composed of Princes and peasants, millowners and workmen, college professors and farmers, Jews, Gentiles, Poles, Armenians, Cossacks, Orthodox priests and free thinkers, so mixed a body with such varied interests that people have said it never could do valuable work because it never could agree. Here is what happened in the Duma when the war broke out:

On August 8, a week after hostilities began, the two houses met at the Winter Palace of the Czar. The Emperor made a short speech, saying:

"I am persuaded that all of you will be in your place to assist me to support the test, and that all beginning with myself, will do their duty. Great is the God of the Russian Fatherland."

A great cheer went up from the Duma. One by one party leaders came forward and pledged themselves to work for the common good. Even Puchkitch, the implacable leader of the anti-semites, abandoned his principles. Today the Duma places the army's interests first.

"This is no time to squabble over reforms," Radzinko, the Duma president replied when I asked him if any important reform bills were on the present session's program. And again, when I asked him why, after short sessions and long recesses, he said:

"Duma members are mostly farmers. We can do more good for the army plowing than we can talking."

The Russian Duma is probably the most truly representative body in the sort of the world and when it speaks it is heard. It is not a phantom, it is a reality. It is not a shadow, it is a substance. It is not a dream, it is a fact. It is not a fiction, it is a truth. It is not a lie, it is a reality. It is not a shadow, it is a substance. It is not a dream, it is a fact. It is not a fiction, it is a truth. It is not a lie, it is a reality.

To take advantage of Russia's position and as a result of the war, even the most ardent opponents of the Duma are now in the Duma. The Duma is now a reality. It is not a shadow, it is a substance. It is not a dream, it is a fact. It is not a fiction, it is a truth. It is not a lie, it is a reality.

At the beginning of the war there was great enthusiasm throughout Germany. More than a million men volunteered to fight. During the first year they fought hard, died or were wounded. The people at home began to economize. This spirit carried the armies far into France and Russia.

During the second year this enthusiasm has not been so great but the determination of the people has not abated. They want peace at once, if they can obtain reasonable terms of peace. If they had to vote to go on until they get these terms or to stop and accept the terms of the enemy, they would vote to go on.

Germany wants peace because Germany believes she has won the war. There are critics and grumblers dissatisfied with everything. Every belligerent has about as many as the other. The difference is that England grumbles publicly, in Germany they cannot; and when people criticize publicly, they do it twice as hard privately.

The people are individually interested in the war because every person has some relative at the front. The best indication of the public spirit of the war is the vote of the Reichstag in June of the new war credit of two billion marks. There was less opposition to it than there was the one before. The Socialists supported it for the fourth time and Socialistic members of the Reichstag are in hourly touch with public sentiment.

Philip Scheidemann, a Socialistic leader, is one of the best informed men in Germany on public sentiment. Scheidemann is in constant communication with the Imperial Chancellor. The Chancellor receives more often by the Kaiser than any other of the ministers. Scheidemann and the Chancellor are the connecting links between the Kaiser and the people. If Scheidemann and his followers did not have confidence in the Chancellor and the Kaiser there would be more evidence of it in the Reichstag. The Kaiser trusts the Chancellor, judgment, absolutely. Scheidemann trusts the Chancellor's judgment and the public trusts the Socialist leader.

So the public still has confidence in the aims of the government as announced by von Bethmann-Hollweg at the Reichstag.

The people themselves deny that they are militaristic. They believe their army is their police force, thoroughly equipped and prepared for defense. To the people, this is a defensive war. They are not fighting to hold Belgium, Poland or Serbia. They are against annexation. If the war lasts longer and they are further victorious, they may change, but there is no indication of it now. Whatever happens a great deal will depend upon the attitude of the press. The Germans know there has been a strong military party and they know this party is today politically weaker than it has ever been.

At the beginning of the war there were three public leaders of the group of politicians called in America "Imperialists." The Republican party in America, for instance has been known as the Imperialist party. Germany has a Republican party. The "Uncle Joe Cannon" element of this party was von Meydebrand, a conservative, annexationist member of the Reichstag. The "Big Navy Man" was Grand Admiral von Moltke and General von Bernhardi.

Heydebrand now has practically no influence outside his party and the other parties in the Reichstag out-vote his party nearly two to one. Tirpitz has resigned and been succeeded by a friend of the Chancellor. Moltke no longer is chief of staff. He has been succeeded by a man who is one of the Kaiser's best friends and a man who during the crisis with America worked for an adjustment to avoid a break. Bernhardi, practically unknown to the German public, has been commander of an army in Posen since the beginning of the war. He has no influence in the government.

What has happened has been written on the pages of the press every day during the last year of the war. The Chancellor has won out against the "Republicans," and the "Stand-patters," the Annexationists, the Trouble Makers, the Fire Eaters and all the other brands of politicians in this class in Germany, where they are at present just as they are in every other country in the world.

That is the reason the spirit of the German people as a whole is good. The people trust the Chancellor. The Kaiser trusts von Bethmann-Hollweg's judgment. The Reichstag respects von Bethmann-Hollweg's statement and ideas and if the war lasts another year from present indications, it will strengthen the position of the Chancellor and every move in that direction is a move towards a freer Germany because the Chancellor and Kaiser are both pledged to franchise reforms in Germany after the war, and the very things the old leaders of the so-called "Military Party" have been fighting against for the last five years.

POPULAR SPIRIT IN GERMANY.
By Carl W. Ackerman.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Berlin, July 15.—(By Mail)—An American diplomat recently declared the greatest mistake in the war is the use of the term "Militarism." "No one," he said, "will ever agree on what it means and it is going to be difficult to end the war on account of that."

The spirit of the German people during the last year cannot be shown without discussing "German Militarism." In outlining the people's attitude toward the war, the Kaiser and the government, Militarism will not be justified or criticized. Recent developments in Germany will be discussed in their relation to what is generally termed Germany's military policy.

At the beginning of the war there was great enthusiasm throughout Germany. More than a million men volunteered to fight. During the first year they fought hard, died or were wounded. The people at home began to economize. This spirit carried the armies far into France and Russia.

POPULAR SPIRIT IN FRANCE.
By Henry Wood.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Paris, July 15.—(By Mail)—"There is not a single piece of gold to be found in my house today."

With eyes flashing pride and voice vibrating with enthusiasm these words were pronounced to me by Professor Alcide Bettrine of No. 166 Boulevard Montparnasse. I picked him at random to tell me something of the spirit of the French people after two years of war.

Professor Bettrine has grown gray in the public school service of France. He is entitled to retire on a pension but he won't do it while the war lasts. Professor Bettrine is proud to be able to say:

"For the first time in my life and in generations in the history of my family, there is not a single gold piece to be found in my house today. I have turned it all in to the Bank of France for the National Defense."

The boast of Professor Bettrine today is the boast of practically every family in France. Within the last year the French have voluntarily exchanged for limy French banknotes over $25,000,000 gold. The stream of gold has been flowing for a year and is still flowing at from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 a week. Such is the spirit of the French after two years of war.

In every French family there are but two great passions—the only son and the little family hoard of gold.

It is the "little hoard of gold" on which every French household is built. Gold, in the popular French conception, is the one real, tangible thing in life on which anyone under any circumstances, can always count. It is the family's life, death, accident, health, marriage and disaster's insurance in one.

Even if the "Beche" had actually reached Paris, the average Frenchman would have known he could still count on his gold to help him out.

This confidence in gold has reached its apex, among the masses, the status of almost a fetish. In thousands of families the gold has passed from generation to generation and the additional sentimental value of a most highly prized heirloom. The average Frenchman figures his future and that of his family on his gold reserve.

Knowing all this, the government did not hesitate to ask for it. But it asked, it did not command. It knew that however much gold meant to its sons and daughter, "La Patrie" meant much more.

The average French family man is inclined to be rather hard headed, calculating money-seeking and saving. "Hard-headed thrift" might easily pass as the motto in French family life.

Early in the war there was published in France and elsewhere an article of presumed German origin explaining why the war with France would not last long.

The French common people, it asserted, would never permit the war to reach a point where it would effect either their regular sources of income or the amount of money they might already have saved. That was one of the things the Germans counted on for a quick, short campaign in France before turning to smite Russia.

Germany was mistaken in the Irish rebellion, Canadian secession and Mohammedan uprising in English colonies. The French population has placed patriotism before pocket books.

The greatest test that could be applied to the French people after they had parted with their sons was to ask them to part without a son of return—pense or premium, with their little family hoard of gold.

This is far from telling all the story of the possibilities of French thrift. It has enabled them to do far more than give the government gold. The French people have "subscribed" some $3,000,000, 000 to France's famous "Loan of Victory." French thrift—coupled necessarily with the French spirit—has furnished France with the financial sinews for prosecuting the war. Parting with the gold was purely a matter of patriotic sentiment. Subscribing to the loan was a matter of careful investment. Yet this thrifty investment speaks perhaps more for the spirit of the French people than did the parting with the gold—for the loan subscription spelled in great big capital letters the word C-O-N-F-I-D-E-N-C-E in the financial stability of the French government and in its ability to win the war.

Now a final test is being made of the spirit of the French people. Minister of Finances Ribot has just estimated that there are being held in France no less than $120,000,000,000 of foreign bonds and securities. There would be of the most supreme value to France in enabling her to offer them as security for her large purchase of war and other material in foreign countries, without diminishing her gold reserve and without suffering the terrible rate of exchange—it is nearly 20 per cent in the United States—caused by the disproportion of the importations over her exports.

So France has asked—not ordered as has been necessary in England—her people to loan her these $120,000,000,000 of foreign securities until after the war. The response has been the same as to the request for gold and for war subscriptions.

The Bank of France has been obliged to open special bureaus in all principal cities and villages of France to receive these securities, and so great is the number turned in that so fast have they come, that the Bank of France, at the moment this article is being written, is unable to give any figures on the amount up to date. It estimates that it will receive $120,000,000,000 worth.

POPULAR SPIRIT IN ITALY.
By John H. Henley.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Rome, July 15.—(By Mail)—The manner in which the people of Italy celebrated the first anniversary of the war recently offers the best impression of Italy's spirit.

The event was everywhere celebrated with splendid shows of patriotic enthusiasm. The capital and other Italian cities made holidays to observe the occasion most fittingly.

The Roman Corso staged a shouting, singing and gesticulating procession of almost 200,000 people.

The populace, the military and governmental and civic officialdom took part. Flag-bearing women and children mixed with the men and boys in the long march from the Piazza del Popolo to the Piazza Venezia.

Broken veterans of 1870 in their tattered but treasured Garibaldian uniforms toiled along with the marchers.

Countless bands, all really musical, played the stirring martial music of Italy and her allies. The buildings, which asked the roofs were gay with the banner of England and France and the Italian tri-color.

The moment of the celebration made it more remarkably significant. The Austrians had just begun their force offensive in the Trentino. They had even been successful in their initial movements. The greater strength

In cannon and the favorable typography of the battleground had been responsible.

Rome, like the rest of Italy, was full of wild and generally exaggerated rumors. The gossip, usually calculated to dishearten a people, was current.

Stories of enemy advances and alleged traitors in Italy's camp, of alleged captures or annihilation of important generals and regiments were on many tongues. Nothing, however, could dispirit the courageous people.

"Temporary reverses" only hardened their determination to win and whipped their pride to greater efforts. Therefore they celebrated the anniversary by flinging into the face of the enemy not a decreasing, but an increasing enthusiasm for war.

Much credit is due the country's women of the people. They responded nobly to the general call for self-sacrifice. Girls replaced the male conductors on the street car and the male sweepers of the streets.

In a great measure the fields began to be tilled and the crops gathered by women. Other feminine substitutes, permitting able-bodied men to train for war, were employed.

Even society gave up its money and its pleasures.

Red Cross hospitals and war relief stations were established and volunteer workers gathered by the thousands.

Italian womanhood, which for years had been crying for industrial recognition, at last was recognized. Ardent suffragists rejoiced and stored away arguments for future use.

The "civil organizations" included an entire system of organized activities. Girls who formerly frittered away their time on teas and parties, were impelled to patriotic pursuits. Others who had been too closely sheltered by old-fashioned parental care, followed their example.

The poorer classes rivaled both in their devotion to duty.

Italian maidenhood abandoned its lazy, dreamlike existence for a life of feverish activity.

Quickly but carefully trained nurses tended the wounded warriors at the town and city hospitals. Some of these were private villas donated for the Red Cross or the government by private philanthropies or individuals. Others were seminaries for priests, loaned by the Pope.

Educational and food centers for the relief of families of soldiers were opened. All kinds of assistance was given to the needy families of the men at the front. Special care of the children of the fighters and women about to become mothers was exercised. Employment was found for those who needed it. The home manufacture of military clothing was encouraged and aided.

Princess Doria offered a large part of her palace for use as a laboratory. Princess Alys Borghese established an economical kitchen in her private property and took charge of it. So many as 162,666 meals have been served there in a single month.

Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, wife of the American Ambassador to Italy, co-operated in these wartime works of mercy. Other residents of the American colony in the Italian kingdom lent willing hands.

Many have sought the ambulance in the very field of battle. Some temporarily became Sisters of Mercy to facilitate the step.

Others signed official documents, which have often become their death warrants. They were compelled to swear that they would be willing to die for the sake of duty and possibly be buried in "a soldier's unmarked grave." In no wise would the government be responsible for their patriotic martyrdom. In countless cases heroic nurses have given of their flesh and blood to save the wounded, unflinchingly they have invited and undergone serious grafting operations.

Queen Helena has been the ruling spirit of all these activities. She generally has inspired and directed everything. She has had the ready assistance of the Queen Mother Margherita. Both have labored unceasingly from the war's start for "Our Italy's Cause." Even now they continue to make their rounds to the Roman hospitals in the vicinity almost daily. Everywhere they leave the sunshine of cheer and encouragement in their wake.

The King at the front and the royal family at home probably, more than anything else, have preserved the splendid morals of the Italian people.

HILLS

Hill-hesitation is galling to your average driver. His sporting blood boils when a 1910-Complex flivver past on the first long pull with apparent ease and matter-of-factness. Invariably he bawls-out his motor and labels it "a cheese." But—ten-to-one, the motor itself is guiltless. The real cause is faulty lubrication.

If your car does the hesitation on the grades, look first to the kind of oil you are using. The Atlantic Refining Company, the oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the world, have produced a group of four motor oils that answer every lubrication question, under any and all driving conditions.

Polarine, the leader of the group, is the correct lubricant for eight out of ten cars. The alternatives are Atlantic "Light," Atlantic "Medium" and Atlantic "Heavy."

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It is free. Ask your garage for it. If they cannot supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

At least one of these four is the exact oil for your particular motor. Your garageman will advise you which to use to get 100-percent results.

Atlantic Motor Oils bear the same relation to lubrication that Atlantic Gasoline—the accepted standard—bears to fuel.

Advise with your garageman at once on this matter of motor oils. His long experience with Atlantic products and all kinds of cars will prove valuable to you.

OSCEOLA MILLS

Osceola Mills, Pa., Aug. 9.—Notwithstanding the sweltering weather on Monday evening when people would be expected to take advantage of the coolest breeze to be found out doors the lecture room of the M. E. Church was filled with an audience to hear the music, recitations and addresses of the members of the Y. P. E.'s and their friends. All present were much pleased with the talent shown by the young people. A short business session followed the entertainment to be given in the Presbyterian Church Wednesday evening, the 16th.

Miss Isabel Brown, a nurse in the South Side Hospital of Pittsburgh, is spending her annual vacation at home.

Mrs. Esther Sparr of Martinsburg, who has been visiting at the home of Harry Brown, left on Tuesday for a visit to friends in Tyrone and Port Matilda.

Mrs. George Shaffer of Philadelphia and Miss Emma Gardner of Florida are visiting at the home of E. A. Hall.

Mrs. Helen Hexter and children of Philadelphia are visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Emma Well.

Mrs. Theodore Moore attended the funeral of her uncle, Mr. Ely at Warfordsburg, on Monday.

A scrap and mysterious shooting affair occurred at the home of an Italian living in the lower end of town on Sunday evening. Eight shots were exchanged. Just at that time electric lights went out and the motor pump into an auto truck when had brought a load of stones from Philipsburg and made them escape. All sorts of rumors are afloat as to the result of the shooting, some saying that one man was killed and two others wounded with a third missing. No one seems to be able to get a correct version of the affair.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign you Have Been Eating too Much Meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and sluggish. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sour, tonchannels often get sore, water scalds is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channells often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act free. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

CURWENSVILLE

The Pyramid coal mine, located
within sight of the town, is being
operated to its almost fullest capacity
at present. From five to six large
coppers are being loaded and shipped
daily, the train averaging about 250
tons. Three Curwensville men are largely interested financially in this
mine, namely: Mr. Fred Pilkington,
Mr. M. J. Kelly and Mrs. I. B. Norris.
Mr. E. O. Ellery of Philadelphia, is also one of the stockholders. The vein is being worked from under the Isaac Caldwell farm, and for some years back it was considered that all
of the coal underlying that section
had been taken out, but the output
from the present mine has proven to
the contrary, and the mine is good
for a half a dozen years yet.

FASHION DECREES FALL HATS WILL BE PURPLE VELVET

Chicago, August 10.—(By United Press)—Her hat will be purple velvet. Fashion dictators at today's session of the Chicago Garment manufacturers' Fall style show at Bismarck said so today.

If it isn't purple velvet it will be
brown velvet, or black velvet. There will be a great deal of velvet in women's hats this fall, especially for the
milliners.

Women's fall wearing apparel continued the center of attraction today

for Chicago visitors attending the
show.

Not the least of this show was the display of hats. The purple ones
seemed to attract the most attention,
probably because the wholesalers had whispered that "Women will like the purple ones," and "They're all the rage," and a few other well directed
remarks that make "this year's
styles" always the prettiest.

After the purple velvets, buyers
planned to take home with them for
their trade brown velvets, black vel-

and a lot of chic, wide brimmed, white
hats with a bright colored crown and
a narrow ribbon to match on the brim.
The sport hat this fall is a floppy felt
affair with not much of anything on
it but a band.
"They'll take, though," wholesalers
said.
